

Bulkeley to Hutchinsons

compiled By John Hutchinson

July 2011

There are 11 generations between Edward Bulkeley and Olive Irby and the children of John Hutchinson and Anne Donald in the Hutchinson line. There are ten in the Donald line. As a result John and Anne are 8th and 9th cousins and their children are their own distant aunts/uncles/nieces/nephews. This is the second shortest known link between the Hutchinson and Donald family. The Bulkeley family is also (luckily) one most distinguished, with ancestors named Venable, Grosvenor, Mainwaring, Neville, La Zouche and English, French, and Scottish kings. A book The Bulkeley Family by F. W. Chapman is digitized as: http://www.archive.org/stream/bulkeleyfamilyor00chap/bulkeleyfamilyor00chap_djvu.txt

Direct Descendants of Edward Bulkeley

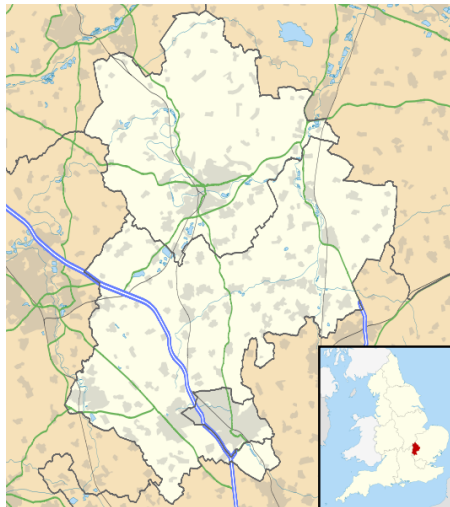

Where do these folks come from?

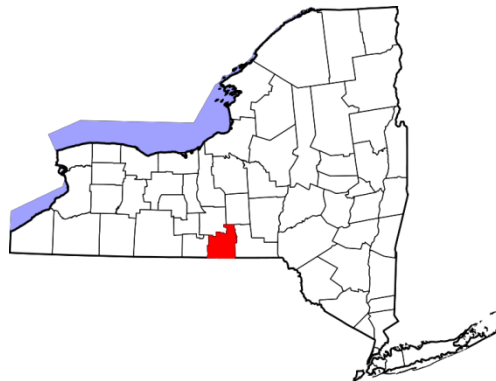

Edward Bulkeley and Olive Irby lived in Odell, Bedfordshire, England and all but one of their children were born there. Odell is a village and civil parish in the north of the county of Bedfordshire in England that lies to the north-west of the county town of Bedford, near the villages of Harrold, Felmersham, Sharnbrook, and Carlton.

In 1633 Martha Bulkeley immigrated to Charleston, Massachusetts and in 1635 Peter Bulkeley immigrated to Concord, Massachusetts. Christian Mellows lived in Newton, Long Island, New York and Gershom Bulkeley lived in Glastonbury, Hartford, Connecticut. Sarah Petit lived in Newtown, Queens County, New York and John Bulkeley lived in Concord, Middlesex, Massachusetts. Elisie Skillman lived in Somerset, New Jersey and Lucy Bulkeley lived in Colchester, New London, Connecticut. Jannetje Aten lived in Somerville, Somerset, New Jersey and Dorothy Lord lived in Owego, Tioga, New York. Thomas Lucas live in Lebanon, Warren County, Ohio and Hope Talcott lived in Owego, Tioga, New York. New York Sarah Lucas lived in Warren County, Ohio and David Goodrich lived in Owego, Tioga, New York. Sarah Ulrey lived in Warren County, Ohio and Lyman Truman Goodrich lived in Owego, Tioga, New York. Daniel Ulrey Hutchinson lived in Argonia, Kansas and Clarence L. Goodrich live in New York.

Several generations on the Donald side lived in Owego, New York. Owego is a village in and the county seat of Tioga County, New York. The population was 3,911 at the 2000 census. It is part of the Binghamton Metropolitan Statistical Area. The name is derived from the Iroquois word Ahwaga, meaning where the valley widens. The Village of Owego is by the west town line of the Town of Owego and is west of Binghamton, New York.

Generation 1

Edward Bulkeley and Olive Irbey

Reverend Edward Bulkeley was born in 1540 in Woore, Shropshire, England and died January 5, 1620 in Odell, Belfordshire, England. He was the son of Thomas Bulkeley and Elizabeth Grosvenor. He married Olive Irby in 1566 in Belfordshire, England. Olive Irby was born in 1547 in Kirton, Bedfordshire, England and died March 10, 1614 in Odell, Belfordshire, England. She was the daughter of John Irby and Rose Overton.

Edward Bulkeley is the second son of Thomas Buckeley (1515) and Elizabeth Grosvenor (1515). Olive Irby is the daughter of John Irby born 1520 in Odell, Bedfordshire, England and Rose Overton born 1526 in Clerkenwell, Middlesex, England.

Edward Bulkeley D.D. was a Moderate Puritan and had three sons and twelve daughters. He was curate of St. Marys, Shrewsbury, in 1550; afterwards he was prebend of Chester and then of Lichfield. In 1558 he became rector of All Saints Church in Odell, Bedfordshire, where he died. He resigned his pastorate in 1609, probably because of increasing age, and died at Odell early in January 1620. His burial on January 5, 1620 was entered in the Odell registers by his son Peter, who had succeeded him as Rector. The will of Edward Bulkley late of "Woodhall" Bedford, doctor of theology, deceased, was proved January 1621, and a commission to administer was granted to Peter Bulkley, son of the said deceased, and executor named in the will [Westminster Act Book, No. 3, fo. 59] The will does not exist, either filed or in the register.

He was a moderate non-conformist, a learned divine, an able preacher, well connected and possessed of considerable wealth. He was one of the commissioners appointed by the Bishop of Lincoln in 1608 for the "Levy of Armour" in Bedfordshire among the clergy. The supplement to Fox's Acts and Monuments of the Martyrs was written by him. His son, Rev. Peter Bulkeley, emigrated to America and settled in Concord.

He matriculated pensioner from St. John's College, Cambridge, Michaelmas in 1555; Scholar, 1555; B.A., 1559/60 M.A., 1563; B.D., 1569; DD. 1578; Fellow, 1560. He obtained the rectorship of Odell in Bedfordshire, probably in 1571. He "compounded" for the living at Odell, March 6, 1571/2, as is shown by the Bishops Certificates of the Diocese of Canterbury. This means that he then paid to his superior his first year's salary, as was then the established practice in the English Church.

We owe to the late Col. Banks the following interesting item from Shrewsbury Corporation Record, Burgess Roll, 1580: Edward Bulkeley of Shrewsbury professor of theology, son of Thomas, admitted burges and has issue Nathaniel, aged 6; Mary, aged 13; Frances, aged 12; Judith, aged 10; Martha, aged 8; Deborah, aged 5; Dorcas, aged 3; Elizabeth, aged 1.

Rev. Richard Madockes of Woodhall.[Odell], County Bedford, in his will dated August 15, 1606, proved November 27, 1606, after providing for his relatives in Shrewsbury, gave legacies to Mr. Doctor Bulkley, Mistress Olive Bulkley, and their daughter Mistress Elizabeth Bulkley and appointed Edward Bulkley, D.D., and pastor, sole executor. Dr. Bulkeley's daughter the "Mistress Elizabeth" referred to above, married Richard Whittingham, of Sutterton, County Lincoln. He in his will, dated March 6, 1615, proved April 1, 1618, made provision for his wife Elizabeth, by whom he then had no children, and his own heirs; and then gave legacies to his "brother" (in-law) Mellowes' children to William Ingoldsbie, a son of brother-in-law Anthony Ingoldsbie, clerk, and the rest of sister Ingoldsbie's children, and to Olive Welbie (daughter of Frances Bulkeley) and all the rest of her brothers and sisters; also to his father-in-law, Mr. Doctor Buckley, his brother-in-law Mr. Peter Buckley, and the latter's son Edward; and made Mr. Anthony Ingoldsbie, of Fishtoft, clerk, one of the supervisors of the will.

Generation 2

Abraham Mellows and Martha Bulkeley

Abraham Mellows, born 1570 in Boston, Lincolnshire, England; died April 23, 1638 in Charlestown, Massachusetts. He married Martha Bulkeley 1595 in Odell, Bedfordshire, England. Martha Bulkeley, born 1572 in Odell, Bedfordshire, England; died 1639 in Charlestown, Massachusetts. She was the daughter of Reverend Edward Bulkeley and Olive Irby.

Abraham and Martha immigrated to America in 1633. "Abraham Mellows and Martha his wife and Edward Mellows their son" were admitted to Charlestown church on the nineteenth day of a month late in 1633, probably October. Abraham was Charlestown overseer of highways, January 13, 1634/5. He was granted two acres of planting ground in Charlestown, January 10, 1634/5 and had a proportion of seven in the hayground in 1635, which was increased to eight. He had five acres Mystic Side, 1637 and in 1637 his share in the hayground was one and three-quarters (and his son Edward had a share of four). In the allotment of land Mystic Side Abraham received parcels of ten, thirty-five and five acres. On September 6, 1638 the Massachusetts Bay General Court granted to "Mr. Abraham Mellows" two hundred acres of land. On June 4, 1639 the "will of Mr. Abraham Mellows was delivered in" to Suffolk court. On June 2, 1641 the General Court granted "200 acres of land ... to the heir or assign of Mr. Abrah[am] Mellows". This was presumably a confirmation of the grant of September 6, 1638, for on June 9, 1641 Sergeant Edward Mellows of Charlestown petitioned the General Court for a grant of 300 acres, on the basis that "about 10 or 11 years since" his father Mr. Abraham Mellows had contributed £50 to the common stock [of the Massachusetts Bay Company], that this should have resulted in a grant of 500 acres, and that only 200 acres had been granted so far. The petitioner stated that he was "heir & assignee of his said father deceased," and that the original contribution had been made by his father at the suggestion of Mr. Humfrey, who had promised a grant of 500 acres.

Through his marriage to Martha Bulkeley, Abraham Mellows became a part of an extensive and distinguished kinship network, many members of which came to New England. In her will of December 16, 1636 Dorothy Wooll of Clypsam, Rutland, widow, bequeathed "to my friends in New England, to Mr. Cotton £10, to his two children £5 each, to Mr. Mellows £10, and to Mr. James £5". Abraham Mellows and his family provide an early connection between two centers of Puritanism, both of which later made major contributions to the Great Migration. He presumably married Martha Bulkeley in the vicinity of Odell, Bedfordshire, and he was certainly residing there in 1609 when his son Edward was baptized there. By 1615 Abraham Mellows was living at Boston, Lincolnshire, where he became a parishioner of Reverend John Cotton. Mr. Abra[ham] Mellows" was admitted as an inhabitant of Charlestown in September 1633, and was in the lists of inhabitants of January 9, 1633/4 and January 1635/6. He signed the agreement establishing the office of selectman in Charlestown, February 10, 1634/5. On March 4, 1634/5 whereas "Mr. Cullimor, servant to Mr. Abr[aham] Mellows, is necessarily employed in public service of the commonwealth in making carriages, it is therefore ordered, that John Humfrey & John Endicott, Esq., shall have power to press any other carpenter to supply the need of Mr. Mellows in lieu of his said servant". Savage noted that Abraham Mellows died "leaving six children, says Felt". This statement derives from a court order of September 1, 1640 in which "Mr. Atherton Hoffe, Mr. Thom[as] Leveret, & Mr. Thom[as] Colebron have authority & order to sell the house & ground which was Mr. Mellows, to be disposed of by them for the good of the six children till they come to age, or marry, & the eldest son to have a double portion". This latter record applies not to Abraham Mellows, but to his eldest son Oliver Mellows, who died not long after his father. Martha Bulkeley is the sister of Peter Bukleley who was prominent in early Connecticut history. Her family is a family of great antiquity in Lincolnshire. Abraham's birth date is estimated from his marriage date, and his marriage date from the birth of his first child. His first child's birth date, in turn, is estimated from his wedding date. Abraham Mellows, Martha his wife and Edward Mellows their son were admitted to Charlestown church on the nineteenth day of a month late in 1633, probably October.

Abraham was made a freeman of the colony on 14 May 1634. This was just 14 years after the Mayflower, and you could probably hear wolves howling in the night from what is now suburban Boston. He was Charlestown's overseer of highways, January 13, 1634/5.

Children of Abraham Mellows and Martha Bulkeley are:

1. Oliver Mellows, born 1595 in Odell, Bedfordshire, England; died January 5, 1637 in Braintree, Massachusetts; married Mary James August 3, 1620 in Lincolnshire, England; born 13 October 1597 in Lincolnshire, England; died March 1632 in Braintree, Middlesex, Massachusetts.

Peter Bulkeley and Grace Chetwood

Peter Bulkeley, born January 31, 1583 in Odell, Bedfordshire, England; died March 9, 1658 in Concord, Middlesex, Massachusetts. He was the son of Reverend Edward Bulkeley and Olive Irby. He married Grace Chetwood. Grace Chetwood, was born in 1602 in England; died April 21, 1669 in New London, Connecticut. She was the daughter of Richard Chetwood and Dorothy Needham.

Peter Bulkeley or Bulkley was an influential early Puritan preacher who left England for greater religious freedom in the American colony of Massachusetts. He was a founder of Concord, and was named by descendant Ralph Waldo Emerson in his poem about Concord, Hamatreya. Bulkeley, reputedly a descendant of the Plantagenets, was born at Odell, Bedfordshire, England. He was admitted to St. John's College at Cambridge University at the age of sixteen, where he received several degrees. At one point he was even a Fellow of St. John's. After finishing his education, Bulkeley succeeded his father as rector of Odell, 1610-1635. During this time Bulkeley followed in his father's footsteps as a non-conformist. Finally in the 1630s there were increasing complaints about his preaching and he was silenced by the archbishop for his unwillingness to conform to the requirements of the Anglican Church. In 1633, Charles I reissued the Declaration of Sports, an ecclesiastical limitation on allowed recreational activities, with the stipulation that any minister unwilling to read from the pulpit should be removed, and Bulkeley's sentiments, along with others in the Puritan movement, were against it. In 1634, Bulkeley refused to wear a surplice or use the Sign of the Cross at a visitation for Archbishop William Laud. For this infraction he was ejected from the parish, at least temporarily. Within the year he emigrated to New England, coming aboard the Susan and Ellen in 1635. He was ordained at Cambridge, Massachusetts in April 1637, and "having carried a good number of planters with him into the woods", became the first minister in Musketaquid, later named Concord. He was "noted even among Puritans for the superlative stiffness of his Puritanism". He was known for his facility in Latin with both epigrams and poetry, with Cotton Mather praising the latter. As a writer, his book of Puritan sermons titled The Gospel Covenant, or the Covenant of Grace Opened, published in London in 1646, in which he appealed to "the people of New England," that they might "labor to shine forth in holiness above all other people", and evoked the City upon a Hill of John Winthrop. To historian Moses Coit Tyler, the "monumental book ... stands for the intellectual robustness of New England in the first age." It is considered one of the first books published in New England. Bulkeley served as moderator at a 1637 synod called in Cambridge due to what Emerson called the "errors" of Anne Hutchinson. According to "tradition", a council of Indians considering attacking the town of Concord held off because "Bulkeley is there, the man of the big pray!" He died in Concord. His first wife, Jane Allen, died in 1626. His second wife Grace Chetwode and sons John, Benjamin, and Daniel accompanied him to America. His son, Peter Bulkeley, married Rebecca Wheeler about 1667, was a Fellow of Harvard University, a Massachusetts Freeman (franchised voter), and a Commissioner of the United Colonies, in addition to a career as a preacher.

Peter Bulkeley was first married to Jane Allen in 1613.

Children of Peter Bulkeley and Jane Allen are:

1. Edward Bulkeley, born June 12, 1614 in Odell, Bedfordshire, England; died 02 January 1795 in Chelmsford, England.

Generation 3

Thomas Pettit and Christian Mellows

Christian Mellows married Thomas Pettit, in England 1629. Christian was born in England about 1609, died at Newton, Long Island, New York before October 1668. Christian was the daughter of Abraham Pettit and Martha Bulkeley. Thomas and Christian sailed for America on the ship Talbot leaving England in March of 1630. They landed at Cambridge Massachusetts July 2, 1630. Their son Thomas was born on board the ship in Salem Harbor. Also on this ship was Anna Pettit who was probably daughter of Henri Pettit (Thomas' father); and John Pettit born about 1608 in England who is probably an uncle to Thomas Pettit. On January 8, 1737/8 in Boston Thomas was granted a house-plot "over toward the new mill" where the Capitol now stands. Between this lot and that of Oliver Mellows (a manufacturer of cloth) John Hancock later built the finest mansion in New England. It was unfortunately torn down about 1856; a bronze plate marks its location.

Thomas Pettit was christened on April 17, 1614. He was granted a house plot in Boston, on which the State House now stands. Thomas and his brother signed the Donegan Charter of New York. Thomas' wife Christian Mellows was a descendant of King Edward I, Knight of the Garter and also a descendant of eight sureties of the Magna Charta: 1. Hugh Bigod, 2. Roger Bigod, 3. Henry De Bohun, 4. Gilbert De Clare, 5. Richard De Clare, 6. John De Lacie, 7. William De Lanvalle and 8. Saire De Quincey.

Thomas Pettit was born in 1609 in Widford, Essex, England and died October 1688 in Newton, Long Island, New York. He was the son of Henri Pettit and Anna. Consistently a non-conformist, Thomas Pettit, with many others in 1637, sided with Mrs. Anne Hutchinson, and her brother-in-law, Rev. John Wheelwright, in their controversy with the Massachusetts Bay Colony. During the trial, 7th of 1st mo. 1638, Thomas Pettit, was arrested on suspicion of slander, insubordination and inciting a riot. He was convicted and sentenced to receive thirty lashes and to be held in gaol. Gaol is an early Modern English spelling for jail, with the same pronunciation and meaning of a place of legal detention. As the church and state were then one, they were all arrested, but were later released upon their agreeing to leave the colony within ten days. Mrs. Hutchinson went to the Rhode Island Plantation of Roger Williams, while Thomas Pettit went to the Falls of the Piscataqua in New Hampshire with Rev. John Wheelwright and thirty-three others and, on a tract called Winnicomette obtained from the Indians, they founded the town of Exeter, and in 1638 established the Congregational Church. In the founding he received six acres and thirty poles as his share of Exeter upland. On July 4, 1639 they joined in signing the Exeter Combination, a Declaration of Independence. Although half of the 35 signers made their mark, the signature of Thomas Pettit is seen in excellent handwriting. He became in 1647 chief military man and Inspector of Staves. He served as Selectman of Exeter from 1652 to 1655.

The Duke of York, brother of Charles II, granted to the Massachusetts Bay Colony all the land east of the earlier Connecticut grant. This enabled the Bay Colony to surround the settlement at Exeter, making it economically necessary for it, in order to survive, to be reinstated with the Massachusetts Bay Colony.

Thomas Pettit, unwilling to be again under its jurisdiction, sold his property and, with his wife and eight children and other settlers, came in 1655 to Long Island and petitioned Governor Stuyvesant, who granted them the right to settle. They named the place Newtown, now, since 1895, Elmhurst, Queens County (Mespit and formerly called Mittleburg) which the Dutch had settled in 1644.

Soon after his arrival on Long Island the Town Marshal, one Elias Bailey, was voted out of office by the townspeople for exercising the duties of his office in an objectionable manner, and Thomas Pettit was elected May 8, 1657 to fill the office. This rather complicated matters, for his son, Nathaniel 1st, had fallen in love with the deposed Marshal's daughter, Mary Bailey.

On December 4, 1666 Thomas Pettit's name was on the list of freeholders, and in 1708 he was one of the first eight members of the Presbyterian Church in Newton, Long Island, New York. Christian his wife (Asahel Pettit says her name was Catherine) became a member about five years later. The names Bailey and Furman occur frequently on the Church roll. Thomas Pettit 1st, born about 1609, was living as late as March 1668 and died in Newtown before October 1668.

Thomas Pettit 1st and his wife Christian Mellows had at least nine children; the exact order of their birth is not known.

1. Thomas Pettit 2d, born on board ship "Talbot", Salem Harbor, Essex, Massachusetts on June 25, 1630 and died in 1715 in New Rochelle, Westchester, New York. He married Sarah Perry, Mary Way and Catherine Branch.
2. Sarah Pettit, born 1634 in Newtown, Queens, New York, died 1704 in Newtown, Queens, New York, married Thomas Skillman.
3. Joseph Pettit, born at Boston 1636 married Margaret German.
4. Elizabeth Pettit, born at Exeter 1637, died 1664 in Long Island, Queens, New York, married John Burroughs and Thomas Reed.
5. John Pettit, born at Exeter 1638, died 1715 in Stamford, Fairfield, Connecticut, married Sarah Scofield and Sarah Bailey.
6. Mary Pettit, born at Exeter, Rockingham, New Hampshire 1640, died 1669 in New York, married John Furman.

7. Moses Pettit, born at Exeter, Rockingham, New Hampshire 1642, died 1716 in Mansfield, Burlington, New Jersey, married Lydia Lawrence.
8. Nathaniel Pettit, born 1645 at Exeter, Rockingham, New Hampshire, died June 1718 in Hopewell, Hunterdon, New Jersey, married Mary Bailey.
9. Hannah Pettit, born at Exeter 1647. Hannah is mentioned in 1678 in the Will of her sister Elizabeth Nathaniel Pettit was a resident of Long Island in 1673 and in 1686, was a signer of the charter of Newtown and removed from Newtown to Hopewell Township in 1696. Nathaniel Pettit owned and occupied the plantation on the river directly below that of Joshua Ely, Senior. His will dated March 13, 1714-15, proved June 25, 1718. He testified in court in December 1667 that he was then 22 years of age and that his brother John was older.

4. Katherine Bulkeley, born 1668 in Wethersfield, Hartford, Connecticut; died 1712 in Wethersfield, Hartford, Connecticut; married Richard Treat; born February 14, 1675 in Wethersfield, Hartford, Connecticut; died May 7, 1713 in Wethersfield, Hartford, Connecticut.
5. Edward Bulkeley, born 1672 in Wethersfield, Hartford, Connecticut; died August 27, 1748 in Wethersfield, Hartford, Connecticut; married Dorothy Prescott; born May 31, 1681 in Concord, Middlesex, Massachusetts; died November 30, 1760 in Wethersfield, Hartford, Connecticut.
6. John Bulkeley, born 1679 in Colchester, New London, Connecticut; died June 9, 1731 in Concord, Middlesex, Massachusetts; married Patience Prentice.

Brothers Thomas Treat and Richard Treat married sisters Dorothy Bulkeley and Katherine Bulkeley. The brothers were the sons of Richard Treat and Sarah Coleman.

Rev. Gershom Bulkeley graduated from Harvard College in 1655 before completing his nineteenth year. He married Sarah Chauncey, daughter of President Chauncey, of Harvard, the emigrant ancestor of the name, October 26, 1659. She was born in Ware, England, June 13, 1631. In the year 1661, Mr. Bulkeley located at New London as the second minister of the church there. Mr. Bulkeley is supposed to have removed from New London to Wethersfield in the year 1667. He was installed pastor of the church in Wethersfield the same year as successor to Rev. John Russell, who had removed to Hadley, Mass. He continued as the pastor there about ten years, when he was dismissed in the year 1677. He then devoted himself to the practice of medicine and surgery. He was appointed by the general court in 1675 surgeon to the army that had been raised against the Indians, and Mr. Stone was directed to supply his place in his absence. In 1676, while the party to which he was attached was in pursuit of the enemy, he was attacked by a number of Indians near Wachuset hill, in Massachusetts, and received a wound in his thigh. Soon after, Mr. Bulkeley devoted himself to the practice of medicine, and located on the east side of the river, in what is now Glastonbury, and became quite a landowner. As a clergyman, he stood at the head of his profession, and ranked among the first in medical science. He was famous as a surveyor, pre-eminent in his time as a chemist, and was highly respected as a magistrate. He died at Wethersfield December 2, 1713. On his monument is the following testimonial: " He was honorable in his descent, of rare abilities, extraordinary industry, excellent learning, master of many languages, exquisite in his skill in divinity, physic and law, and of a most exemplary and Christian life."

Gershom's parents and older siblings landed at Boston in midsummer, 1635. Historian Jacobus notes that "When he was born some months later, the name of Gershom was bestowed on him. This was not a family name on either side, but was chosen from the Bible to commemorate the fact that the child was born far from home — for quite naturally England was still looked upon as home. Gershom means "an exile"; 'I have been a stranger in a strange land.' (Exodus, II. 22)."

He was appointed Chirurgeon to the army in October 1675, and added to the Connecticut Council of War (King Philip's War); he was reappointed Chirurgeon to the army, May 1676; wounded by a shot from the enemy, March 1676, on Major Treat's expedition northward; was granted £30 by the Council for his good service to the country, January 1676/7; was granted liberty, October 1677, to transport 200 deer skins out of the Colony to be exchanged for medicines. He served as Deputy for Wethersfield to the Connecticut General Court, May 1679. In October 1686 he was licensed to practice physic and chirurgery. He was a Justice of the Peace for Hartford County under Gov. Andros in 1687.

Obituary: From Jacobus' Bulkeley Genealogy:

The will of Rev. Gershom Bulkeley, dated 26 May 1712, in his own handwriting, calls him "Practitioner in Physick" and contains a long preamble, beginning: "I, ye said Gershom Bulkeley, having much more than twenty years walked upon ye very mouth of ye grave, under so great infirmity, yt I cannot but wonder how I have all this while escaped falling into it, have not been wholly umnindfull of yt wch nature and common prudence calls for in such cases. But in ye meantime sorrowful changes from ye right hand of ye most High have passed over me, and some yt I had hoped would have survived me have prevented me and left me behind them, whereby, with some Incident considerations I am moved to alter some things wch otherwise I should not have done. And therefore, remaining still, though very weak in body yet of sound mind and memory, I do now make this (I hope) my last will and testament, hereby revoking and annulling all former wills whatsoever made by me: In ye first place, Casting myselve upon ye Riches of Sovereign Grace, (if God have wrought any truth in my most deceitfull heart,) I commit my sinfull soul into ye mercifull hands of my most Gracious Lord & savior Jesus Christ, whom God hath exalted by & at his own Right hand, to be a Prince & a savior, to give Repentance and Remission of sins unto Israel. To him therfore I fly for both, with ye humble and comprehensive Petition of ye Publican, God be mercifull to me a sinner. And my body I commit to ye dust, as it was, to be (as near to my late dear wife, as conveniently may be,) decently but obscurely buried without much cost or Ceremony. I neither deserve nor desire those things, yet desire a part in ye first & better Resurrection of ye Just.

"And as for these few poor children wch I shall leave behind me, in a most sinfull and calamitous world, to grapple with difficult times, ye best bequest I have for them, is Luthers short, but significant and pertinent prayer, Tu Domine, [...], Serva, Doce. To him therfore I commend & give them all, humbly beseeching him, That he will graciously accept them and theirs, & make them all his own, & faithfull to him to ye death, & be their Portion; a God & Father to them in Christ his Son, from generation to generation, Amen."

The will bequeaths to son Edward all his law books and manuscripts; to son John his religious books and manuscripts, referring to those written by his grandfather, his father, and himself; to daughter Dorothe the rest of personal estate, including negro maid Hannah; son-in-law Thomas Treat Executor; bequests to son Charles' daughter Hannah Goodrich, to daughters-in-law Hannah Avery and Rachel Wolcott (probably Tolcott), and to son Edward's wife Dorothe; to brother Peter's children,—Gershom, Peter, Grace, Margaret, and Dorothe, said Grace to have "my great red rugge wch was her mother's." To grandson Richard Treat, son of Thomas and Dorothe, all his books and manuscripts concerning medicine and chemistry, and a Latin and a Dutch Grammar; "together with all my vessels and instruments useful, whether of glass, brass or copper, iron, stone or earth"; provided he hold and pursue his inclination to that study. To deceased daughter Catherine Treat's only child, Catherine Treat. A codicil, dated November 24, 1713, states that Thomas Treat having died, Gershom's daughter Dorothe Treat is to be sole Executrix; will proved December 7, 1713.

Widow Hannah Reymond Bulkeley married Thomas Avery. Son Charles' daughter Hannah Bulkeley married Richard Goodrich, the son of Ephraim Goodrich and Sarah Treat and great grand parents of Erastus Goodrich in generation 8 of this document.

Thomas Skillman and Sarah Pettit

Thomas Skillman was born about 1637 in Rotherheigh, Surrey, England. He died April 1, 1699 in Newtown, Queens, New York. He was the son of Joseph Skillman and Susan Mussarow. Thomas was a soldier under Colonel Richard Nicolls in Expedition of Duke of York ordered by the King, February 25, 1664. He sailed from Portsmouth, May 15, and dropped anchor in the harbor of New Amsterdam (near present day Fort Hamilton) on August 18 of the same year. After the surrender he stayed in America and became 'inhabitant and freeholder' at Newtown, Long Island, New York, under Nicolls Patent of January 23, 1666. He also served in Esopus War; honorably discharged April 6, 1668. He did not return to England, but remained in this new country and raised his family. By 1666 he settled on Long Island in the community of Newtown and married (in 1669) Sarah Pettit who was born about 1634 in Newtown, Queens County, New York; died after 1704 at Newtown, Queens County, New York; daughter of Thomas Pettit and Christian Mellowes. Thomas took an Oath of Allegiance to King Charles II, on February 19, 1665 at Elizabeth Town.

The children of Thomas and Sarah are:

1. Thomas Skillman born 1671; married about 1693 Annetje Aten born about 1667 Flatbush NY; died after 1 November 1741; daughter of Adrian Hendrickse Aten. Resided Newtown Long Island, New York. Thomas left will dated February 13, 1739; probated July 4, 1740.
2. Elsje Skillman born 1672 Newton, Queens County, New York; married 1694 Thomas Aten born about 1670 Flatbush New York and died 1757; son of Adrian Hendrickse Aten. Elsje died in 1704 in Somerset, New Jersey.
3. Sarah Skillman born 1675 Newtown New York; married 1694 Cornelis Hendricksen.
4. Elizabeth Skillman born 1677 Newtown New York; died after August 20, 1742 in New York, New York, married Jan Aten. After 1710, they moved to Three Mile Run, New Jersey.

Note that siblings Thomas Skillman, Elizabeth Skillman, and Elsje Skillman married siblings Annetje Aten, Jan Aten, and Thomas Aten.

Thomas Skillman, a soldier, reportedly came to New England with a British invasion force in 1664. Charles II had assigned to his brother James, Duke of York, all of the area making up the Dutch holdings of Nieuw Nederlands (New York State), including part of Connecticut and all of Long Island. Although the British had no real moral right to the area, they found the existence of a Dutch Colony sandwiched between England's colonial possessions in New England and Virginia to be irksome and had the military strength to remove the irritant. The expedition was ordered by Charles II on February 25, 1664, and was led by Colonel Richard Nicholls. Some 450 troops sailed from Portsmouth on May 15. Thomas was reportedly aboard the Guinea, the chief of three or possibly four small vessels. It was about a ten-week crossing. The first fifteen days of the voyage saw good wind and weather, and the ships kept company until July 13. Then, however, the weather took a turn for the worse and the ships were separated in the fog. The Guinea dropped anchor in Nyack Bay between Coney Island and Nieuw Utrecht on August 18.

The Dutch Governor, Peter Stuyvesant, had been warned of the expedition's coming, and strove to rouse the Dutch colonists to resistance. His efforts were in vain; the Dutch were unhappy with Stuyvesant and the role of the Dutch West India Company in governing the colony, and wanted a greater role in the government for themselves. Most Dutch believed English rule would give them that role, and most refused to raise a hand to defend the Colony. The Dutch surrendered to fairly conciliatory terms, and handed the Colony over to the English who renamed it New York.

Colonel Nicholls became the Deputy Governor of the colony and Thomas decided to stay on with him; there is another family tradition that he was a favorite of the new governor. He is reported to have received a land patent from Nicholls for land at Albany, New York, and also at Bushwick, but he did not settle there. He lived for a time across the Hudson River Bay at Elizabeth, Union County, New Jersey, where he was recorded fifth on a list of sixty swearing an oath of allegiance to King Charles II on February 19, 1665. He did not remain long, however, for in a patent dated January 23, 1666, he is listed as an inhabitant and freeholder in Newtown, Queen's County, New York; Newtown was across the East River from New York City. There he settled on 200 acres in the area known as Maspeth (or Dutch) Kills. The area was originally a part of the Dutch colony of New Netherlands, and was settled by a predominantly Dutch population. By the time the English took control of the colony, the Dutch inhabitants had been joined by a sizeable number of English families, including Thomas'.

At this same time, he again took up soldiering. He was one of twenty-five men sent by the Governor to "chastise" the Indians who three years before had committed the Wiltwyck Massacre at Esopus (present-day Kingston, Ulster County), New York. As an inducement, the Governor had promised each man a land bounty of ten acres at Esopus. His name appears on the list of those agreeing to accept "dividends of lots" there "whenever the governor shall give order for laying them out." Although the lots were later laid out by the surveyor Jacques Cortelleau and taken up by several of the men, Thomas appears to have never taken up residence there; it is presently unknown what disposition he made of it. He received his discharge on April 6, 1668, and returned home to Newtown.

In February 1672, John and Samuel Brown of Flushing, Queens County, paid Thomas £0.07.06 for three days work (at what is unspecified). Thomas appears on the 1686 list of Newtown freeholders. He was taxed in Newtown in 1683 on "1 head 10 [acres] lands 1 Horses 6 Cowes: 3 3 yeares 2 1 yeares 2 Sheep." On 5 May 1686, William Albertus assigned a bill of sale of land to Thomas: "Know all men by thes present that I william all burtis have & by thes presents doe assings sett & make over all my Rite titell & Intrust of this bill of sale with Ever part & parsell ther of: on in Mentioned unto thomas skillman of Mashpatt Kills I say I have maide over for mee My Hiers Exitors admtors unto him & for the proper ues & behoofe of him th sd Thomas Kill Man his Hiers Exitors adm::: & asings for Ever: as ther own proper Rit. & Just due in True performanc of the sam. I sett my hand this 5th of May 1686."

It is thought he died around 1697, but certainly before April 1, 1699 by which date his wife was remarried to Cornelius Breese, presumably in Newtown. He was buried in a cemetery thought to be located "between Gilbert Street and Rearsall Street, and on each side of Bradley Avenue, at a place called Blissville, north of and near Calvary Cemetery in Long Island City, New York. The burying ground occupied a knoll adjoining the salt meadow, and is about one mile south of the Skillman farm. It was used by all different families of that neighborhood. About 1855, it was graded and the gravestones used to underpin a barn."

His probate records have as yet proved elusive, perhaps because the British burned many of the town records during the Revolution and another fire in 1789 destroyed many of the remainder. Sarah married as her second husband Cornelius Breese of Brooklyn. On April 1, 1699, she transferred a quarter of her late husband's estate -- "housing, lands, meadows, and orchars, rights, privileges, advantages, hereditaments and appurtenances thereunto belonging and in any wise appertaining" -- to her only son Thomas.

Epaphras Lord and Lucy Bulkeley

Epaphras Lord and Ichabod Lord, of Marlborough, were sons of Richard Lord, 3d, of Hartford, and Abigail Warren, daughter of William Warren. Her mother, Elizabeth, was the daughter of John Crow, who married Elizabeth, only child of Eider William Goodwin. Mr. Crow was the largest landholder in Hartford. Eider William Goodwin was prominent in the early days, was one of the original purchasers of Hartford, a ruling elder in the Rev. Mr. Hooker's church, and afterward in the church at Hadley. He died in 1673, in Farmington, leaving his estate to his daughter. Mr. Crow was in 1659, next to Mr. Welles, the wealthiest man in East Hartford. On the death of William Warren, in 1689, Mrs. Warren married Phineas Wilson, a wealthy merchant from Dublin, and on his death continued her husband's business, and became the most extensive banker in the State. Richard Lord died in 1712 aged forty-three, leaving a large estate. Four of his five sons lived to grow up, and were graduated from Yale, the two youngest, Epaphras and Ichabod, in 1729. Their mother married for her second husband the Rev. Timothy Woodbridge, and died very aged, in 1753. She gave the church in Marlborough a communion-service, which was sold in after years and replaced by a plated set, to the scandal of the town. After his death she returned to Marlborough, where she died July 8, 1794, aged eighty-four. Her daughter, Elizabeth Lord, married John Fells. They were married February 20, 1723 in New Rochelle, Westchester, New York. Frans Jacob Lucas and Jannetje Aten are rumored to be German refugees for religious reasons. Jannetje is the Dutch name for Janet. It is pronounced YON-eh-chuh. The -tje and -tie endings for female names are both pronounced the same, which is why it often seems that both used for the same woman. They are pronounced "chuh". She was a member of the Reformed Dutch Church of Brooklyn, New York. Children:

9. Charles Talcott, born March 11, 1795 in Glastonbury, Hartford, Connecticut; died October 28, 1861 in Owego, Tioga, New York.

Elizur Talcott, came with his sons, George Lord Talcott, then aged 18 years, and Elizur Talcott, Jr., aged 22 years. In 1802 they moved to Elmira, where they were employed in building a dwelling house. The next year they came to Owego. In 1803, he purchased of Jared Goodrich of Glastonbury, Connecticut, two pieces of land in Owego, one containing fifty acres and the other 67 acres. The western boundary of this land was the Owego creek. The eastern boundary was a line which passed diagonally across North Avenue and ran about parallel with McMaster Street. The south boundary was a little below Fox street and the north boundary was near where George street now runs. Mr. Talcott sold the northern part of this farm to his son, George Lord Talcott.

Elizur Talcott lived in a large frame house, which stood on the east side of McMaster Street, midway between Fox street and the Erie railroad. It was similar to all the large farm houses of that time, with a wide hall extending from front to rear in the middle. George Lord Talcott's house was at the southeast corner of Talcott Street and the Lehigh Valley railroad. It was occupied after his death by his son, George Talcott, and after George Talcott's death it became the property of William H. Thomas, who reconstructed it and lives in it now. The Talcotts were farmers all their lives. The land they purchased had been partly cleared by the Indians, but most of the land from the Owego Creek east was at that time a forest wilderness of lofty pines, gigantic oaks, and a dense undergrowth of bushes. Elizur Talcott took little part in public affairs, but in April, 1825, when the legislature passed an act constituting a commission to build a county clerk's office in Owego, he was appointed one of the commissioners. Mr. Talcott died November 28, 1831. His wife, Dorothy (Lord) Talcott died April 14, 1839, aged 86 years.

The children were all born in Warren County, Ohio. They lived in Warren, Ohio and Montgomery, Ohio. Daniel's estate records show that he was a member of the Dunkard Church.

Daniel Ulrey/Ullrey and Sarah Lucas had a daughter Susanna Ullery who first married a James Monfort and then a Jesse Cousins. James Monfort and Susanna Ullery had a daughter Mary E. Monfort.

Mary Monfort married George Lucas, a nephew of Sarah Lucas - Mary's 1st cousin, once removed.

The Ullery/Lucas connection was discovered in 1994 when a court case was found. Sarah (Lucas) Ullery was suing her brother Francis Lucas regarding their father's estate. (Francis is George's father.) Susanna Cousins had to give a deposition in the case in 1834.

Dr. Vallentine, a Lucas researcher, believes that Daniel's father was a Stephen Ulery.

Elizabeth Ulery (1802-1866) married Lewis Passon in Warren County, Ohio 1820. She is buried in Berne, Adams County, Indiana as Elizabeth Passon, living with her youngest son at her death.

In the original warrant of which the Ulrey tract was a part, it is called the "Mill Seat Tract," and was granted to Edward Sanders under date of December 22, 1766, and was sold by Edward Sanders March 16, 1780, to Daniel Ullery and the warrant says that Daniel Ullery by will dated January 2, 1781, devised the same to his son, John Ullery, and John Ullery entered his acceptance of the land under date of July 24, 1795. This warrant was issued by Thomas Mifflin, governor, and attested by James Trimble, deputy secretary. This land according to the warrant, as issued to Edward Sanders, was situated in Bedford Township, Bedford County. It appeared to be in possession of the Ullery family from 1780 to 1821. Under date of March 22, 1821, John Ullery conveyed this land with a larger adjoining tract amounting to three hundred and eighty-eight acres, to George B. Spang and the location is given as Woodbury Township, Bedford County. This purchase took in the "Mill Seat Tract," the Spang mansion farm, the Eli Lower and the Samuel Garver heir's properties.

After taking possession of the property Henry C. Nicodemus made a survey of it which was made March 3, 1864. According to this survey it contained eighty-nine acres and twenty-three perches of which Isaac Bowers subsequently bought forty-two acres and the paper mill company nine acres, the balance of it being taken up by the grist mill and stream and by some building lots reserved. The line fence between the Job Mann property and the Spang farm began at the mill race where it is now crossed by Girard street and continued the same bearing as the street now has for one hundred and four rods to a post, thence by a little change in the bearing forty-four rods more to the land of Eli Lower. The land lying between this line and the Duncan lands comprise this purchase

Their names were Stephen, Daniel, and John. Stephen died in 1820. His children's names were: David, Stephen, Simon, Jacob, Henry, and Eli. Daniel moved to Miami County, Ohio, in an early day. He had a large family. John Ulrey married a German woman by the name of Elizabeth Arnold. John farmed. He built a stone house which still stands. Many descendants are yet living in Clermont county and other parts of Ohio.

Note Thomas Lucas appears twice in tree so that George Lucas married the daughter of his cousin Sarah Ulrey.

There is another family connection. Daniel Ulrey and Sarah Lucas had a daughter Elizabeth who married her cousin Israel Phillips the son of Jabash Phillips and Rhoda Lucas. Rhoda Lucas is the daughter of Thomas Lucas and Sarah Medford.
